

From here, you can
see almost 200 years.

You can read the
journals, books
and histories,
but the only way to
really experience the Voyage of Discovery
is to visit it yourself.

Come, see what
Lewis saw.
Walk where Clark walked.

While you're at it,
float a river,
dance on the beach
or tell ghost stories
under the stars.

Meriwether Lewis

the Chief further informed me that he had understood from the persed nosed Indians who inhabit this river below the rocky mountains that it ran a great way toward the seting sun and finally lost itself in a great lake of water which was illy taisted, and where the white men lived.
